The bill would require the buyer to make an application to the Public Utility Commission (PUC) seeking approval of the acquisition with the information outlined in the legislation.

The fair market value would be determined through two independent appraisals, which would have to be conducted by PUC-approved utility valuation experts and comply with the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice. The bill would prohibit the experts from deriving any material financial benefit from the sale of the utility other than fees for services rendered. The fees paid to the experts could not exceed five percent of the fair market value of the selling utility or a fee approved by the PUC. The appraisal would have to include an assessment of the tangible assets of the selling system as determined by a licensed engineer. The seller's ratemaking rate base would be incorporated into the rates of the buyer in a base rate case before the PUC, and would be the lesser of the purchase price or the fair market value as determined through the appraisals. The rates of the seller, at the time of acquisition, would remain in place until new rates are established by the PUC through a base rate case.

The PUC would have six months to approve or deny an application. If approved, the PUC's order would have to include the seller's ratemaking rate base and any additional conditions for the approval. The seller's cost of service would be incorporated into the revenue requirement of the acquiring public utility during its next base rate case proceeding. Any improvements made after the acquisition that are not recovered through a distribution system improvement charge would be eligible for inclusion in the allowance of funds used during construction for a four-year period or until the asset is included in the next base rate case. Depreciation on post-acquisition improvements that are not included in a distribution system improvement charge would be deferred for book and ratemaking purposes. Passed: 48-0.

Supplemental repair estimates that become necessary after the repair work has been initiated due to the discovery of additional damage to the motor vehicle could be made by personal inspection or by photographs, videos or telephonic means, except in the case of disputed repairs when a personal inspection would be required.
